

October 27, 2008

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Woodlyn's New UltraVision® can increase the efficiency of your practice by 32%*

Woodlyn, Inc. • Arlington Heights, IL – Woodlyn's new UltraVision represents a portal into the future of office efficiency. Aside from its core function as a visual acuity tester, it now offers doctors and their staff the extraordinary convenience of seamlessly accessing all files including diagnostic data and EMR from any location wirelessly. UltraVision's HIPPA Compliant Encryption feature allows for the EMR files to be securely transmitted.

The proof of UltraVision's capability to increase office efficiency has been measured at 32% over the previous year's time frame through its use at Florence Eye Center in Florence, Alabama.

"We have seen our chair time dramatically reduced, up to five minutes per patient, allowing us to schedule more patients per day. The diagnostic digital photos are much easier to track and bill as compared to hand drawings on a file. As a result we are actually able to net $42 per patient."
– Benjamin Kachelman, OD

"We've now introduced a WOW factor to our patients when viewing the digital photos of their eyes. The explanation of their diagnosis through this system makes it much easier for them to understand. It also gives parents comfort when you offer them a clearer understanding of their children's exam results. When you think of how complex this system is, it was absolutely amazing at how simple it was to install and learn." – Barry Basden, OD

"Installation and training was provided by Woodlyn, and was finished in 2.5 days with no down time. By the end of the first week our entire staff was up to speed and things were running smoothly. Both of our offices are now using the new system." – Heather Davis, Office Manager

Woodlyn's new UltraVision provides practitioners with the most convenient and efficient way to retrieve any data desired without ever having to leave the room. It can be customized to accommodate the needs of any size practice and network with multiple locations. The most powerful benefit behind this new product is its capability to dramatically streamline any office practice and significantly increase its bottom line.

For additional information please contact Woody Witt at 847.725.6751 or email him at woody@woodlynintl.com

For additional editorial information please contact Jason Witt at 847.725.6763